THANK YOU! THANK YOU! THANK YOU!

As co-convenors of the 2016 Women's Conference, we cannot say "thank you" enough to all of our dedicated committees and volunteers, our wonderful ministry partners, church and pastoral staff, and everyone who helped make our conference such a rousing success! Your hard work and commitment truly paid off; we couldn't have done it without you!

We also want to thank the participants from the Chicagoland area and those from out of town who supported our conference. We extend a heartfelt thank you to our Senior Pastor, Rev. Dr. Otis Moss III, for his continued encouragement and support of our endeavor. Most especially, we want to thank God, with whom all things are possible – for giving us the strength and determination to carry out the vision for this year's conference.

Let us all continue to pursue our theme, "Black Women Matter," and to stand up and speak out for justice wherever we are and whenever the opportunity arises. To God be the glory for the things God has done through each of you! Thanks again...for everything!

Your sisters in the struggle for justice,

Mrs. Monica Brown Moss

Village Values

Late last year, Pastor Moss christened our brand new website with a powerful message, simply entitled: Village Values. This stirring message is so representative of what Endeleo seeks to accomplish in Health, Education, and Community Development, that we still feature it on our homepage. We invite you to engage in its substance for a clearer understanding of the connectedness of our work.

We have mentioned many times how elated we are to have received a grant from the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) to support Trinity's Farmers Market. You should know there is a powerful and informative National Public Radio podcast (The Fighting for the Promised Land) you can download for free that documents the incredibly horrifying struggle our Black farmers endured not so long ago and puts into perspective the relational significance between the USDA and Black farmers (like Mr. Barker from Pembroke, IL, shown with his grandson in the photo above). To listen, please visit our website, endeleoinstitute.org or thirdcoastfestival.org.

Telling our story is an empowering exercise. It has never been more important for connecting our past to our present and charting our future. Village Values. We pray that you listen to the podcast and fully support Trinity's Farmers Market this season, with an entirely fresh, new perspective. By Any Greens Necessary!
